

POLISHING TOOLS FOR NATURAL STONE

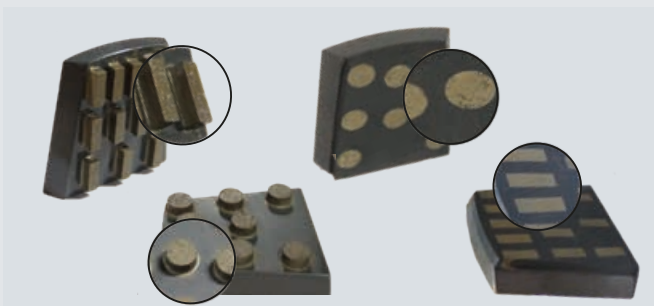

INTRODUCTION

The introduction of diamond in the surface treatment of natural stone, has revolutionized the way of working allowing a higher production of calibration and polishing lines, improving in a remarkable way the surface of the slabs. We develop alloys and intern processes to manufacture our polishing tools, always looking to obtain the best polishing process and performance.

FRANKFURTS

The FRANKFURT type segment are designed for high production polisheers for grinding and polishing marble.

They overcome with great advantage to conventional abrasives, and the result is very advantageous in all points of view. Available in various configurations

FICKERTS

The FICKERTS type segment are intended for using them in high production granite polishing machines.

ADVANTAGES

The main advantages over convinient abrasives are:

- Due to its lower working pressure, it reduces up to a 50% the electric consumption of each head.
- This lower pressure allows you to work with fewer loads and it has as consequence, important savings in manteinance and reparation of the machine.
- The production of sludge is less, so it is reduced the evacuation of these, preserving the environment.
- The high lifetime of the diamond, allows long period productions without stopping, taking total advantage of the working hours.
- The high performance of FICKERTS does them a perfect choice in a lifetime/cost relation.
